12 months ago

infinitSpace has opened two new workspaces under its 'beyond' brand, one in Gouden Bocht, Amsterdam, and one in Berlin Mitte's Quartier Heidestrasse development.

infinitSpace creates and operates flexible workspaces on behalf of commercial landlords and asset managers. Including the two that have opened their doors this week, the company operates nine workspaces across four countries, seven of which are run under the beyond brand – three in London, three in Amsterdam and one in Berlin.

Located in Amsterdam's historic Canal District, the new 'beyond Gouden Bocht' workspace is spread across three floors of Herengracht 471, a listed building dating back to 1666. The property is managed by Nuveen Real Estate, one of the world's largest investment managers – infinitSpace entered into a management agreement with Nuveen in Q3 2024.

beyond Gouden Bocht totals almost 1,000 square metres, including a mix of coworking space, private offices and meeting rooms. It is surrounded by restaurants and bars, while its city centre location provides strong transport links.

Meanwhile, 400 miles to the east, 'beyond Quartier Heidestrasse' marks infinitSpace's first opening in Germany.

Quartier Heidestrasse is in Berlin's Europacity project area, a modern and innovative urban district. Located at Heidestraße 34 in the city's central Mitte borough, the development has excellent transport links, with Berlin's Central Station a five-minute walk away.

Spanning almost 4,500 square metres and facilitating 700 workstations, beyond Quartier Heidestrasse is situated in the complex's six-story 'Straight' building, which combines a mixture of residential and office space, as well as a rooftop bar and cafe. infinitSpace will operate the street-facing section of the building.

In both of the new beyond workspaces, infinitSpace has completed a high-quality fit-out, equipping them with cutting-edge technology, including a workspace management app that connects flexible workspace members across infinitSpace's global network.

Wybo Wijnbergen, CEO and co-founder of infinitSpace, said: "We are absolutely delighted to open the doors of both these incredible workspaces to members. It marks another big chapter for infinitSpace and our beyond brand, and we're confident that businesses are going to love working from these new spaces.

"Herengracht is one of Amsterdam's most iconic and desirable locations, and partnering with an internationally renowned institution like Nuveen Real Estate to bring a beyond workspace to this historic building is huge for us. From the historic to the brand new, opening a beyond workspace in Berlin's exciting Quartier Heidestrasse development is a similarly big step for us, marking our first move into the vibrant German capital.

"We cannot wait to see both locations go from strength to strength in the months to come, and to forging more partnerships with landlords around the world so together we can launch more amazing flexible workspaces."
