

Keynetics Returns to The Security Event with New Integrations and Partnership Announcements

1 year ago

Keynetics, the provider of the well-recognised SentiGuard key management solution, is set to showcase its latest integration with AJAX alarm systems at The Security Event, taking place at the NEC Birmingham from 8-10 April.

Visitors can find Keynetics on stand 5/L80, where they will also be able to experience live demonstrations of its unique key safe, app, and platform.

One of the highlights of this year's Keynetics offering will be the new AJAX integration, which allows alarm systems to be automatically disarmed and reactivated via the key safe access app when collecting and returning keys

Stuart Wheeler, Managing Director at Keynetics, comments, "AJAX integration is just one of several developments we have planned for 2025. We are continuously developing new features that work seamlessly with other security solutions on the market, whether alarm systems, video surveillance, or other security technologies."

SentiGuard key safes have achieved an unrivalled, certified security grade from LPCB. Additionally, the SentiGuard solution has been shortlisted in the Outstanding New Security Product category at the UK Outstanding Security Performance Awards (OSPAs) 2025, reinforcing their industry-leading position in the access control sector.

Beyond the UK and US markets, SentiGuard is experiencing significant growth across Europe. In light of this expansion, Keynetics will announce new partnerships with major global players in the vacant and void property, security, and facilities management sectors at the event.

Stuart added, “We look forward to reconnecting with our partners, existing clients, and all visitors at The Security Event.

“While our diaries are quickly filling up with meetings, we will ensure that every stand visitor receives a full SentiGuard demonstration and leaves with the information they need to transform their keyholding processes effectively.”

The Security Event is part of The Safety & Security Event Series that welcomed a record-breaking number of attendees in 2024 when nearly 50,000 visitors over three days at the NEC. This must-attend exhibition brings together security professionals, including manufacturers, installers, distributors, contractors, and end users.

Book your free pass to The Security Event today: <https://www.thesecurityevent.co.uk/>.