

PTSG preserves protection at historic Chatham Naval Memorial

8 months ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG) has been appointed to deliver specialist electrical services at Chatham Naval Memorial, ensuring the continued protection of this important heritage site.

Located in Kent's Great Lines Heritage Park, the Chatham Naval Memorial stands as a tribute to the 8,517 Royal Navy personnel who lost their lives in the First World War and a further 10,098 in the Second World War – all without a known grave. A towering obelisk set above the Medway Towns, the memorial is a lasting symbol of sacrifice and naval history, situated near what was once a principal manning port for the Royal Navy.

As part of the works, engineers from PTSG Electrical Services Ltd carried out a comprehensive test and inspection of the site's lightning protection system – a critical safeguard for the memorial's structural integrity.

A market leader in lightning and surge protection, PTSG provides nationwide expertise in testing, maintenance, compliance, and the design and installation of protection systems. The group's support ensures that structures of national significance like Chatham Naval Memorial are not only preserved but remain protected against the elements long into the future.
