

DMA Maintenance gains prestigious BSIA membership

2 months ago

DMA Maintenance, part of DMA Group, has been accepted into the British Security Industry Association (BSIA), which allows them to offer new fire and security services provision.

The company has secured Principal Membership in the Security Systems Section of the BSIA, the UK's leading trade body for the professional security industry. This achievement builds on DMA's existing background commitment to delivering exceptional facility management services across both the public and private sectors.

As a specialist division, DMA Maintenance offers a comprehensive range of in-house fire and security services, including:

- Fire alarm systems – installation, maintenance, and regulatory compliance
- Emergency lighting – regular testing and servicing
- Access control – secure entry systems and advanced management
- CCTV systems – monitoring, maintenance, and technological upgrades
- Intruder alarms – installation, servicing, and rapid response protocols

Steve McGregor, executive chairman at DMA Group, commented: “Our Principal Membership with the BSIA is more than a mark of quality—it’s a testament to our focus on service excellence. This membership reinforces our commitment to quality, compliance, and industry best practice, enhancing the value and assurance we provide across all FM services.”
