

Neo earns Institution of Fire Engineers accreditation ahead of new consultancy launch

1 year ago

Neo, part of Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG), has been officially recognised as an Affiliate Organisation by the Institution of Fire Engineers (IFE) – a global benchmark for professionalism and expertise in the fire safety sector.

The endorsement comes as Neo prepares to launch its dedicated Fire Consultancy division, offering clients comprehensive, expert-led fire risk assessments and safety strategies grounded in practical frontline experience.

The IFE's Affiliate Organisation status is reserved for businesses that demonstrate a consistent commitment to industry best practice, professional development, and the advancement of fire safety knowledge. Many of Neo's team members already hold individual IFE accreditations, bringing a wealth of operational firefighting knowledge to their assessments.

Steven Doherty, Commercial Director at Neo, said: "This recognition reflects our team's dedication to raising standards in fire safety and reinforces the principles behind our new Fire Consultancy division—assessments that truly protect lives and property."

The affiliation also provides Neo with access to IFE's latest research, training and sector updates, helping to ensure the company remains at the cutting edge of fire safety compliance and innovation.

Neo's recognition as an IFE Affiliate Organisation further reinforces PTSG's wider commitment to excellence, quality and continuous improvement across all service areas.
