7 months ago

One of the most respected award schemes in the facilities management sector – the PFM Partnership Awards – has revealed its 2025 shortlist. Among the finalists in the sought-after Partners in Innovation category are PTSG's NSS division and ALTEC, recognised for NSS's groundbreaking siphonic drainage system.

The collaboration between NSS and ALTEC has delivered forward-thinking, sustainable solutions that are making a real difference in the built environment. The judging panel has highlighted the tangible benefits of this partnership – from engineering innovation to performance delivery on-site.

The shortlisting is no small feat. The PFM Awards are known for their detailed, independent judging process, which includes on-site assessments following the initial written submission phase. Only partnerships demonstrating true innovation and measurable impact make it this far.

Greg Ward, CEO of PTSG, said: "We are delighted to be shortlisted for this highly respected award, which recognises the very best in innovation and collaboration. Our partnership with ALTEC continues to demonstrate how working together with shared purpose and vision can deliver outstanding results."

Winners will be announced at a gala awards ceremony in November. Until then, we'll be keeping a close eye on how this innovative partnership continues to evolve.
