

Guardian Secures Summer Electrical Compliance Contract at Keele University

11 months ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG), through its specialist electrical compliance provider Guardian Electrical Compliance Ltd, has been appointed to deliver a full programme of electrical testing and inspection services at Keele University during summer 2025.

Located in Staffordshire and set within a 600-acre campus, Keele University is known for its world-leading research and commitment to sustainability. The university's estate comprises a diverse mix of academic, residential, and commercial spaces — requiring rigorous compliance to ensure the safety and continuity of its operations.

Guardian's engineers will carry out a full schedule of electrical testing works, including fixed wire testing and portable appliance testing (PAT), to maintain safety across the university's estate and ensure full compliance with current regulations.

PTSG is one of the UK's leading providers of electrical compliance services, supporting large and complex estates across education, healthcare, public sector and commercial environments. The Group delivers its services through five independent business divisions, offering integrated or standalone solutions across electrical services, access and safety, façade maintenance, fire solutions and water treatment.

This latest contract win underlines PTSG's continued role in supporting higher education institutions with robust, reliable compliance programmes — helping universities remain safe, efficient and operationally resilient all year round.
