

Guardian backs grassroots football with local team sponsorship

8 months ago

Guardian Electrical Compliance \(Guardian\), part of Premier Technical Services Group Ltd \(PTSG\), has become an official sponsor of AFC Ecclesfield Blues, a Premier Division side in the Sheffield Imperial Sunday League (SISL).

The sponsorship has added significance as one of Guardian's own apprentices, Mason Royles, is part of the team.

Founded in 1923, the SISL is affiliated with the Sheffield & District Football Association and The Football Association. With more than 100 teams competing across three divisions, it is among the largest and most popular Sunday football leagues in the region.

Guardian has a strong history of supporting local sport. Since 2015, it has been the official sponsor of Rotherham United Football Club, with its name still proudly displayed on the team's Puma Teamwear a decade later.

Alongside its community commitments, Guardian continues to deliver specialist electrical compliance testing services nationwide. As part of PTSG Electrical Services Ltd, its work helps customers across all industries – including many blue-chip clients – remain compliant with the latest regulations, ensuring safety and peace of mind.