Neller Davies has been awarded a place on the ESPO 664_25 Consultancy Services framework across seven individual lots, covering a wide range of public sector consultancy requirements.

Starting in September, the lots Neller Davies has been selected for include: business services; procurement; food and catering; health; sport, leisure, culture and tourism; asset management and delivery; and facilities management.

The ESPO 664_25 framework, worth £300 million in total, provides public sector organisations with access to pre-approved consultancy providers across a range of disciplines. It is designed to support efficient procurement and ensure compliance with UK public procurement regulations.

Julian Fris, director at Neller Davies, said: “We welcome our inclusion on the framework. With hundreds of public sector bodies able to access the framework, including NHS Trusts, local authorities, universities and central government agencies, the total potential value of works under this agreement is substantial. For Neller Davies, this strengthens our visibility and influence across strategic public service delivery and reflects the breadth of consultancy support we offer across estates, facilities, catering and procurement.”

Neller Davies provides consultancy services to organisations across workspace, education, healthcare, local government and related sectors, with a focus on supporting clients to manage services and estates more effectively.
