

Burg-Wächter launches secure communities awards

2 months ago

Security specialist Burg-Wächter is launching its Secure Communities Awards, which give regional community leaders and volunteers the chance to win security products worth up to £200 for their organisation. Any regional initiative that is run by or supports the local community can apply.

Doing their bit

The ongoing awards are in recognition of the fact that people around the country who are doing their bit for their community should not have to worry about the security of their premises, equipment or storage areas. The Secure Communities Awards are Burg-Wächter's way of saying thank you to community leaders for supporting people in their area.

Open to all community organisations

The type of project or organisation that the awards are open to is very wide-ranging. It could be a scout group; a local sports group like a cycling or football club; a school after-hours club; a hospital or healthcare community programme; a provider of events for children or OAPs; a facilitator of village activity; or a town/village charity. As long as the initiative is run by or supports the local community, and it has a specific security need Burg-Wächter would like to hear about it. Successful applicants will each receive a tailored security bundle to help secure property, premises, equipment or storage areas to the value of £200 at retail price.

Previously, Burg-Wächter has already helped 97 regional causes through the provision of over 2,000 pieces of security equipment.
