

PTSG Appoints Industry Leader Adam Davies as Group Aviation Director to Drive Growth in Airport Compliance and Safety

2 months ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG), one of the UK's leading providers of specialist compliance and safety solutions, has announced the appointment of Adam Davies as Group Aviation Director – a newly established role created to support its strategic expansion in the airport sector across the UK and Europe.

With over 20 years' experience in highly regulated aviation environments, Adam is recognised as a compliance and operational expert, having led award-winning programmes at major international airports, including Heathrow. Under his leadership, Trinity Fire and Security (a PTSG company) has delivered complex fire, life safety, PAVA and alarm systems across critical airport infrastructure, most recently at Heathrow Terminal 3.

In his new role, Adam will lead the commercial and operational strategy for PTSG's aviation division, mobilising new airport contracts, overseeing transformation projects such as D365 implementation and 3PL logistics, and ensuring consistently high standards of regulatory compliance and customer delivery. His expanded position will also include promoting and selling the full spectrum of 170 services across PTSG's five business divisions

For airport operators, the appointment signals PTSG's enhanced focus on helping clients navigate complex regulatory requirements, reduce risk and future-proof their life safety systems. With rising compliance expectations and the increasing complexity of airport infrastructure, PTSG's offering, underpinned by Adam's leadership, is positioned to deliver both assurance and innovation at scale.

This move aligns with PTSG's broader strategy to deepen its presence in critical infrastructure sectors where safety, resilience and performance are paramount.
