

PTSG CEO Dr Greg Ward Shares Leadership Lessons on Talent Smart Podcast

6 months ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG) chief executive Dr Greg Ward has shared insights into the leadership mindset driving the company's continued growth, during a guest appearance on the Talent Smart podcast.

Speaking with Talent Smart managing director Philip Fanthom, Ward reflected on what he calls the "apprentice mindset" – a principle rooted in his early career as a young apprentice at Ford. He described how a focus on work ethic, personal accountability and continuous learning has shaped his approach to leading one of the UK's fastest-growing specialist services providers.

Ward also discussed the increasing importance of resilience within modern leadership, highlighting the need for organisations and individuals to be adaptable, agile and forward-looking in challenging operating environments.

A further theme running through the conversation is Ward's belief in visible, connected leadership. He emphasised the importance of remaining closely engaged with frontline teams and creating a culture where all colleagues feel heard, respected and able to contribute.

The full interview can be accessed via the Talent Smart website:

<https://www.talent-smart.co.uk/resources-podcast/gregward>

PTSG, which delivers specialist services across fire safety, electrical testing, building access and compliance, continues to invest heavily in leadership development as part of its long-term growth strategy.