

Robertson Facilities Management Secures First ScotRail Contract

4 months ago

Robertson Facilities Management has secured a two-year contract to deliver grounds maintenance and winter gritting services for ScotRail following a competitive tender process.

This award marks the first time Robertson Facilities Management (RFM) has worked with ScotRail, the national passenger rail operator in Scotland.

RFM will deliver planned and reactive services at more than 360 locations across Scotland including stations, depots, signalling centres, office buildings, operational yards, and passenger-facing areas that require year-round upkeep. The scope covers winter gritting, vegetation control, litter collection, and wider grounds maintenance to support safe and well-managed environments across the ScotRail estate.

William Heaney, Managing Director, Scotland, Robertson Facilities Management, said: "Scotland's rail network plays a vital role in daily life and we understand the level of care required to keep such a large and varied estate safe, compliant and well managed.

"Our teams bring extensive experience in maintaining complex operational environments and will apply that knowledge to support consistent, high quality and value driven services across the network." "We look forward to building a collaborative partnership with ScotRail that helps create welcoming and dependable spaces for staff and passengers throughout the year."

The contract strengthens Robertson Facilities Management's expertise in national grounds maintenance delivery across the public sector and supports continued sustainable growth in target markets. The Robertson Facilities Management approach to collaborative work was recently recognised at the PFM Partnership national awards in London, where the company was awarded top honours, taking the Overall Winner title as well as Partners in Expert Services category for its work with the Scottish Fire and Rescue Service.
