

KeyTracker Shortlisted in Prestigious Black Country Business Campaign

4 months ago

KeyTracker, the UK's leading designer and supplier of secure key and asset management systems, has been shortlisted to become a Black Country Chamber of Commerce Bostin' Business.

KeyTracker has been recognised alongside some of the Black Country's most innovative companies in the Bostin' campaign, which is designed to showcase the area's economic strengths and highlight where local businesses are leading in the region, the nation, and the world.

The shortlist features 18 businesses, including Rowley Regis-based KeyTracker, which will be whittled down to a top 12 following a public vote. Those featured in the final line up will become official Bostin' businesses. Voting is open now and closes on Friday 20th February. Votes can be cast here.

Andy Smith, Director for KeyTracker, said: "It's an honour to be included in this shortlist of businesses who all bring something special to the Black Country. We'd love as many people as possible to get behind us and cast a vote, to ensure we achieve full Bostin' status."

A spokesperson for Black Country Chamber of Commerce said: "Congratulations to all our shortlisted businesses. Here's to celebrating the diversity, strength, and tenacity that defines the Black Country!"
