

PTSG Strengthens Electrical Services Division with Acquisition of Testing Services (UK) Ltd

2 months ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG), the UK's leading provider of specialist compliance services to the facilities management industry, construction sector and end-user marketplace, has announced the acquisition of Testing Services (UK) Ltd, a nationwide expert in electrical inspection, testing and compliance.

Testing Services has built a strong reputation over more than two decades for delivering high-quality electrical inspection and testing services to customers across the UK. The business provides a comprehensive range of compliance-led services, including Electrical Installation Condition Reports (EICR), Portable Appliance Testing (PAT), emergency lighting inspections, fire alarm and extinguisher works and associated remedial services, supporting organisations to ensure the safety and reliability of their electrical systems.

The company serves a broad and diverse customer base and benefits from a highly recurring revenue profile, with inspection and maintenance activity underpinning long-term client relationships. Electrical testing and associated remedial works account for the majority of the company's activity, reflecting the growing regulatory focus on electrical safety and compliance across the UK built environment.

The acquisition further strengthens PTSG's Electrical Services division, enhancing the Group's capability in electrical inspection and testing and reinforcing its position as one of the UK's most comprehensive providers of electrical compliance services. PTSG is now firmly established as one of the UK's three leading electrical services contractors, reflecting both the scale of its operations and the depth of its technical capability.

Testing Services will complement PTSG's existing electrical services platform, working alongside established businesses within the Group to expand technical capability and support continued growth across multiple client sectors.

Paul Teasdale, PTSG's Executive Chairman who led on the deal, said: "Testing Services is an excellent strategic fit for PTSG. The business has developed a strong reputation for technical expertise, high levels of customer service and consistent operational performance in a highly regulated sector. Electrical compliance continues to be one of the most important areas of building safety across the UK, and organisations increasingly require trusted partners capable of delivering specialist testing and inspection services at scale. By bringing Testing Services into the Group, we are strengthening our ability to meet that demand. We are really pleased to welcome Jon Roberts and the wider team to PTSG. Their knowledge, experience and customer relationships will play an important role as we continue to build the UK's leading electrical compliance business."

Greg Ward, Chief Executive Officer of PTSG, said: "I am delighted to welcome Jon and the entire Testing Services team to PTSG. This is a business with strong technical capability, a loyal customer base and a reputation for delivering high-quality electrical compliance services in a sector where standards matter. What excites me most is the opportunity to bring our teams together. By integrating Testing Services into the PTSG operating model, we will combine their expertise with our scale, systems and multidisciplinary capability to deliver even greater value to our customers. Electrical compliance is a critical component of building safety, and this acquisition further strengthens our ability to support customers with consistent, high-quality services across their estates. I am very much looking forward to working closely with the team as we build on their success and continue to grow our Electrical Services division together."

Testing Services operates nationwide from its base in West Yorkshire and employs a highly skilled team of engineers and technical specialists delivering inspection and testing services across a wide range of commercial and industrial environments.

Following completion of the acquisition, founder and Managing Director Jon Roberts will remain with the business and continue to lead its development as part of PTSG.

The acquisition forms part of PTSG's long-term strategy to strengthen its specialist service capabilities and expand its national footprint through targeted acquisitions that bring strong technical expertise, high-quality recurring revenue and experienced leadership teams into the Group.

PTSG is a leading specialist services and building compliance group delivering critical services across Access and Safety, Electrical Services, Building Access (roof and façade maintenance and cleaning), Fire Solutions and Water Treatment. Headquartered in Castleford, West Yorkshire, the Group operates through a nationwide network of offices and specialist teams. Operating internationally, PTSG employs more than 3,200 highly trained professionals, cares for over 400,000 buildings and delivers services to more than 90,000 customers across the UK and in the Netherlands.