3 hours ago

ABM, a leading provider of facility, engineering, transport and infrastructure solutions, has been awarded a Gold RoSPA (the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents) Award for Health and Safety Excellence. The award marks the seventh consecutive year the company has achieved gold-level recognition for safety.

RoSPA is a UK-based charity and a leading voice in health and safety. Achieving the highest level in its internationally recognised awards highlights how deeply ABM's safety culture is embedded across every site and every shift.

This year's achievement, awarded for health and safety excellence during 2025, comes during the 70th anniversary of the RoSPA Health and Safety Awards, a major milestone celebrating seven decades of progress, leadership and life-saving work across the safety community.

Andy Lewinton, Vice President QHSE ABM UK & Ireland, comments: "Achieving gold for the seventh consecutive year reflects the strength of a culture where safety, performance, and accountability are inseparable, driven every day by our teams."

"It also builds on the progress we're making through other initiatives such as Safe365, which are helping us continuously evolve and strengthen our approach. Together, these efforts reinforce that our priority is ensuring every team member comes to work in a safe environment, every day."

ABM will join other winners to collect the gold award at RoSPA's prestigious 70th Anniversary Award ceremony on Tuesday, June 30, 2026, at JW Marriott Grosvenor House London, Park Lane, London.
