Cardo Group has completed the acquisition of EFS Systems (UK) Ltd, a specialist electrical and solar installation and maintenance business based in Merthyr Tydfil, South Wales.

Founded in 2003, EFS Systems delivers complete electrical and engineering solutions, from feasibility and design through to installation and project completion across commercial, industrial and renewable sectors.

The acquisition further strengthens Cardo's self-delivery capability and expands its presence across Wales and the wider UK.

EFS Systems will continue to operate under its existing leadership team, ensuring continuity for customers and colleagues, while benefiting from Cardo's broader platform, resources and strategic direction.

Robert Hadley, Managing Director of EFS Systems (UK) Ltd, said: "Since 2003, we've built a solid reputation for consistent delivery and a hands-on, responsive approach. We focus on providing clients with quality service and results they can rely on in every project we take on.

"Being part of Cardo allows us to build on that foundation, with access to greater scale, support and opportunities, while continuing to deliver the high standards our clients expect."

Liam Bevan, CEO of Cardo Group, said: "We're really pleased to welcome the EFS Systems team into Cardo Group. Their track record of high-quality, people-focused services aligns closely with how we approach our work.

“Rob and the EFS Systems team have been trusted partners of mine for over 10 years, and we’ve worked closely with them on projects for a wide range of clients during that time.

“This acquisition strengthens our ability to deliver integrated services for our clients, while continuing to grow our presence in key regions. Just as importantly, it brings in a team with the right values and expertise to support our long-term ambitions.”

The acquisition reflects Cardo’s ongoing strategy to partner with well-established, high-performing businesses that complement its core services and enhance its offer to clients across the UK.
