

PTSG Secures Major Electrical Contract Wins Across Sectors

6 hours ago

Guardian Electrical Compliance, part of PTSG's Electrical Services division, has announced a string of significant contract wins spanning the public sector, higher education, healthcare and industry – with one landmark client bringing the potential for further growth across six additional sites.

Leading the latest round of wins is a feasibility study completed for BBC Broadcasting House in London, with a further six BBC sites now in the pipeline. It's the kind of relationship that speaks to Guardian's growing reputation for delivering compliant, methodical electrical inspection programmes across complex, high-profile estates.

In healthcare, Guardian has secured a fixed wire inspection and testing contract with East Lancashire NHS Trust. Healthcare environments demand the highest standards of electrical safety with critical infrastructure underpinning patient care around the clock and Guardian's expertise in navigating the compliance requirements of NHS estates makes it a trusted partner in this sector.

Solent University has awarded Guardian a fixed wire inspection and testing contract, adding to a growing portfolio of work in higher education. Universities present their own distinct challenges: large, varied estates with a mix of teaching spaces, laboratories, student accommodation and administrative buildings, all requiring rigorous inspection regimes to meet current standards.

Kimberly-Clark's Cumbria site has also appointed Guardian for fixed wire inspection and testing, bringing Guardian's compliance expertise into a demanding industrial manufacturing environment.

Rounding out the latest wins, the Environment Agency has contracted Guardian across 19 sites for electric vehicle supply equipment (EVSE) work. As the UK accelerates its transition to electric vehicles, the demand for compliant, safely installed EV infrastructure is growing rapidly and Guardian is well positioned to support both public and private sector organisations as they upgrade their estates.

Together, these contracts reflect PTSG's and Guardian's ability to operate across diverse sectors and building types, delivering the fixed wire testing, inspection and emerging EV infrastructure work that keeps buildings safe and businesses compliant.
