GSH Group Appointed to Deliver Engineering Services Across Bidwells Portfolio

2 hours ago

GSH Group has been appointed by Bidwells to provide engineering and hard facilities management services across a multi-site property portfolio, establishing a new partnership between two of the UK's longest-standing businesses.

The appointment will see GSH deliver engineering-led services across the portfolio, working closely with Bidwells and its clients to maintain high operational standards, enhance building performance and provide long-term value for occupiers and asset owners.

The partnership combines the capabilities of Bidwells, the independent property consultancy founded in 1839, and GSH Group, the family-owned facilities management and engineering specialist established in 1895.

Together, the organisations will focus on responsive service delivery, technical excellence and continuous improvement across the portfolio.

Under the agreement, GSH will apply its engineering-led delivery model, combining consistent service standards with a tailored approach for individual properties. The company said open communication, practical problem solving and accountability will be central to its service strategy.

"GSH's engineering-led approach, technical capability and focus on practical, responsive service make them a strong fit for this portfolio," said Rob Richardson, Partner, Investment and Property Management at Bidwells. "We are pleased to welcome the team and look forward to working closely together to deliver consistently high standards and long-term value for our clients and occupiers.”

The relationship also creates opportunities for broader collaboration as the two organisations explore additional ways GSH’s engineering expertise can support Bidwells’ property management operations and client needs.

“We are genuinely delighted to begin this partnership with Bidwells,” said Matt Mannion, Regional Business Development Director at GSH Group. “There are real parallels between the two organisations: strong heritage, personal accountability, long-term thinking and a determination to keep evolving without losing the values that made each business successful in the first place. We are proud to support this portfolio and excited about what we can build together.”

While both companies point to their long histories as a shared strength, leaders from both sides stressed that the partnership is focused on the future, with an emphasis on dependable service, strong technical understanding and delivering a positive experience for clients and building users.

Founded in England in 1895, GSH Group is a family-owned global provider of facilities management and engineering services, supporting clients across the United Kingdom, United States, Europe and India. Bidwells, founded in 1839, is a leading independent property consultancy with offices throughout England and Scotland, serving clients across the science, technology, property and rural sectors.
